*Antiseptic hand lotion in a Long Term Care Facility
clearly does damage!*

We were disappointed to find this sideboard we had built 10 years ago with so much damage to its beautiful butternut top (left). Its position in the lobby meant it was a logical spot to place the hand sanitizer for guests. Now that we've refinished the top and bottom (right) the hand sanitizer has been moved to a safer location.

New life to an old games table

Refinishing doesn't have to be a major exercise or expenditure. Small jobs can make huge differences!

While this games table will need refinishing at some point, the unsightly damage to the French Polish (left photos) was an embarrassment. After our work on-site (right photo), the damage is barely visible, and the happy owner can once again use the table uncovered.

Cut down to size

This great 9' table (left) worked well in the country house, but when brought to town it overwhelmed the dining room. We cut it down to 6 1/2', added two leaves, and refinished the top. Now it fits the room and still expands to hold the clan.

*New condo
New colour*

This blond maple table (left) worked well in the old condo, but when she moved, it didn't fit the new decor. We refinished to match the stool (right) and now it fits in beautifully.
